

Allen Wang

Production Engineer
KECN

▶ Started at Kimball Electronics in 2013

- Allen resides in Naning, China. Allen spends his free time doing entertaining activities with his family and fishing with his friends.
- Allen has received several promotions within the production department in his 11 years with Kimball Electronics. He began as a line leader, and was promoted to Assistant Production Engineer, then Production Engineer. Each of these roles has taught him skills that he uses to increase efficiency of implementation on-site. He is most proud of his professional achievement of mastering one piece production, something that provides a good foundation for him to use in future program launches.
- Kimball Electronics is Allen's Employer of Choice because the culture of the company encourages open communication lines and teamwork. He stated that his favorite thing about working with his team is "the manner in which we communicate with each other. We focus on the topics and also help each other."